ISAIAH.

Here begynneth the prolog in the book of Ysaye, the prophete^a.

No man, whan the profetes he shal seen with versis^b to ben discriued, in metre eyne he^c hem anent^d the Ebrues to ben bounden, and any thing^e lic to han of Salmes, or of the werkus of Salomon ; but that in Demostene and Tullio it is wont to ben do, that bi dyuyseouns, and vnder distincciouns thei ben^f writen, the whiche forsothe in prose, and not in vers^{ff} wryten. Wee forsothe, to the profit of rederes purueyende, the newe remenyng with a newe maner of writing han^g distinctly write^g. And first, of Isaie it is to wite^h, that in his sermoun he is wys ; forsothe asⁱ a noble man, and of curteis fair speche, ne any thing is mengd of cherlhed in his faire speche. Wherefore it falleth, that the translacioun shal not moun kepe the flour of his sermoun, biforn othere. Theraftir also this is to be leid to, that not more^k he is to be seyde a profete, than euaungelist. So forsothe alle the mysteries of Crist^l and the^m chirche^{mm} to cleer, 'or cleerliⁿ, he pursuede, that not hym thou weene of thyng to come to profecien, but of the^o thingis^p passid^q storie^r to weue. Wherefore I eyne the Seuenti Remenoures that tyme not to han^s wold the sacramens of ther beleue to shewe ful clerly to the hethene, lest hoeli^t to dogges, and margarites to swyn thei 3eeue. The whiche whan this making 3ee shul rede, of hem^u 3ee shul taken heed^v, 'or perceyue^w, hid^x thing^y. Ne I vnknowe of hou myche trauaile it be the profetes to vnderstonden, ne liztly any man to moun demen of the remenyng, but if he schal^z vnderstonden^{zz} byfore he schal reden ; wee also to ben opene to the bitingus of manye men, the whiche bi enuye styrende, that that thei moun not han, thei dispisen^a. Thanne I witende and slee3, in to the flaume putte the hond ; and nerthelater^b this of nozesum rederes I pre3e, that as Grekes after the Seuenti translatores, Aquylam, and Symachum, and Theodocian thei reden, or for studie of ther doctrine, or that the Seuenti more they vnderstonde of the togidere leiynge^c of hem, so and these namely oon^d remenour aftir the rathere vouche thei saf to han. Rede thei rathere, and aftirward dispise they ; lest thei ben seen not of dom, but of presumpcioun of hate vnknownen thyngus to dampnen. Forsothe Isaie profeciede in Jerusalem and in Jewerie, not 3it the ten lynages led in to caitifte ; and off euer either rewme, now togidere, now^e seuerendely, he ordeynede the profecie. And tho3^f other while he bihold to the present storie, and aftir the caitifte of Babiloyne he betocne^g the a3eencomyng of the puple in to Jewerie, nerthelater^e al his bisynesse is of the cleping

Here endith the prolog, and now begynneth the book of Ysaie, the prophete^m.

Here bigynneth a general prolog for alle the bokis of profetis suyngⁿ.

As seynt Jerom seith in the prolog of Ysaie, Isaie is ful witti and ful opyn in his wrytyng in Ebreu, thou3 the translacioun in to Latyn mi3te not kepe the^b fairnesse of speche. Isaye is worthi to be seid not oneli a profete, but more, a gospellere, for he declarith so opynli the mysteries^c of Crist and of hooli chirche, that thou gesse hym not oneli^d to ordeyne a^e profesie of thing to comynge, but to ordeyne a storie of thingis passid. Ysaie profesiede in Jerusalem and in Judee, whanne the ten lynagis of Israel weren not 3it led in to caitiftee; and he ordeyneth a^f profesie of euer either rewme, sum tyme of both togidere, sum tyme of ech bi it silf. And whanne Ysaie biholdith sum tyme to the present storie, and signefieth the comynge a3en of the puple in to Judee aftir the caitifte of Babiloyne, netheles al his bisynesse, that is, principal entent, is of the clepyng of hethene men, and of the comyng of Crist. Al this is the sentence of Jerom in the prolog of^g Ysaie. Here it is to vndurstonde, that Isaie bigan to profesie bifore that the ten lynagis weren led in to caitiftee of Assiriens, as Jerom seith here; but he profesiede aftir this caitiftee, aftir Ezechies deth, in the tyme of Manasses, as it is seid in the fourthe book of Kyngis the^h twentithe chapitreⁱ, and in many mo places. This seith 'a postille^k on Jeroms prolog on Ysaie. For as Ebreis seien, and Lire witnessith on the firste chapitre of Isaie, Manasses ordeynede and demyde Isaye to be sawid with ynne a cedre tree, that closid hym with ynne it silf bi myracle, whanne Manasses hadde demed hym vniustli to deth^l. Also alle profetis that ben not teld opynli in the text, whanne and in what tyme thei profesieden, profesieden in the same tyme in which the profetis goynge next bifore profesieden, that ben teld in the text vndur whiche kyngis and tymes thei profesieden, as Jerom seith in his prologe on the twelue Profetis, and it is sette in the bigynnyng of Osee. Comynli alle the derk places of the^m profetis moun be vndurstonduⁿ liztli bi thre reulis. The firste is this, that the principal entent of the profetis is to declare the mysterie of Cristis incarnacioun, passioun, resurreccioun, ascensioun, and theⁿ comyng to^o the general doom, and the pupplischyng of the gospel, and the conuercioun of hethene men, and the tribulacioun of hooli chirche in this lijf, and the blis of heuene therfor^p. The secounde reule is this, that the profetis warnen the puple of Jewis of her grete synnes, and exciten hem to do penaunce; and thanne thei schulen gete remyssion of her synnes, and grace in present tyme, and glorie with outen ende; ellis thei schulen haue tribulacioun in this lijf, and peyn with outen ende. The thridde reule is this, that the profetis rehersen ofte benefices ȝouun of God bifor to the Jewis, to counforte hem to ȝyue credence to goodis bihiȝt in her profesies; and thanne the stories of Moises lawe, ether^a of Josue, Judicum, Regum, and Paralipomenon, and of othere historial^t bookis schulen be wel lokid; and schortli to seie, the profetis schulen be expounded bi the text of Moises lawe, and of othere historial bookis of the Elde Testament, ether bi the text of the Newe Testament. The literal vndurstondyng of hooli scripture is the ground of al gostli vndurstondyng therof, that is, of allegorik, of moral, and of anagogik. No goostli vndurstondyng is autentik^u, no^v but it be groundid in the text opynli, ether in opyn resoun, suyng of principiis, ether reulis of feith^w, as seynt Austin witnessith^x opynli in his pistle to Vincente, Donatiste, and in his book of Soliloquies, and Jerom on Jonas, and Lire on the bigynnyng of Genesis, and in many placis of hooli scripture, and Ardmakan in his book of Questiuons of Armenyes. Therfor men moten seke the treuthe of the text, and be war of goostli vndurstondyng, ether moral fantasie, and ȝyue not ful credence therto, no but it be groundid opynly in the text of hooli writ, in o place or^y other, ethir in opyn resoun, that may not be auoidid; for ellis it wole as likyngli be applied to falsnesse as to treuthe, and it hath disseyued grete men in oure daies, bi ouer greet trist to^z her fantasies. Literal ether historial vndurstondyng techith what thing is don; allegorik techith what we owen for^a to bileue; moral ether tropologik techith what we owen to do to fle vices, and kepe vertues; anagogik techith what we owen to^b hope of euerlastyng meede in heuene. Of these foure vndurstondyngis schal be^c seid pleyulier, 'if God wole^d, on the bigynnyng of Genesis. Also it is to wyte, that the profetis speken sum tyme bi figuratif speche, and^e liknen men to vnresonable beestis, and clepen men bi figuratif speche, liouns, beris^f, culueris, and ofte^g othere vnresonable beestis, for certeyn synnes whiche thei vsen acordyng with the kyndis of vnresonable beestis; as men ben clepid liouns for pride, ether raueyn, ether sum other synne; and sum tyme a lioun signefieth Crist, for his power, and sum tyme a lioun signefieth the deuel, for tirauntrie and raueyn; and men ben clepid beeris, for gredynesse ether glotonye, and mulis, for letcherie; and so of othere beestis and othere synnes. Men ben clepid culueris sum time for madnesse, and sum tyme for innocence, symplenesse, and charite. Bi these reulis and bisi studyng of the text, men moun listli vndurstonde the derk placis of profetis; and algatis loke wel that the sentence takun of the text be trewe, and acorde^h with charyte, and thanne it is the sentence of the Hooli Goost, as seynt Austyn seith.

seed of Nylus is heruest, the flood is the corn therof, and it is maad the mar-chaundie of hethene men. Thou, Sidon, schulde drawe down the pride of al glorie, and that he schulde bringe to schenschigirdil is no more to thee. It stretchide [Prologue on Jeremiah^a.]

This profete Jeremye tolde openli thingis to comynge, and not in derk speche, as Ysaie and othere profetis; for he telde vtterli the destruccioun of Jerusalem to be doon of Caldeis, and the cite and the hous of God to be brent with fjr; but warnynge hem bifore to leue her synnes, and her idolatrie, and to come azen to the trewe wurschiping of God, schewinge the grete merci of God, not willinge ony man to perische, that wole come to amendement.

Prolog to Jeremie, prophete^a.

JEREMYE, the profete, to whom this prologe is ascriued, as anent^b the Ebrues is seen to ben booistousere than the sermoun of Isaie, and of Osee, and than^c othere profetes; but in wittes he is euene, sithen that in the same spirit he profeciede; but the symplenesse of speche fel to hym of the place in whiche he was born. Forsothe he was of Anatoth, that vnto this dai is a litil town, bi thre myle beende fro Jerusalem; a prest of prestus, and in his moder wombe halewid; thur; his maidenhed halewende to the chirche of Crist a gospel man. This a child bigan to profecien; and the caitifte of the chef cite, and of Jewerie, not only in spirit, but and with ezen of^d flesh beheeld. Now forsothe Assiries hadden translatid the ten lynagis of Irael in to Meedis; now the townes of Jentiles weldedden the londis of them. Wherfore in Jewere onli^e and Beniamyn he profeciede; and of his cite the fallingus with fourefold abece, he weilede, the whiche weef han 3olden^g to the^h mesure of metre and versⁱ. Therfore the ordre of viseouns, that anent Grekes and Latynes outerli is confoundid, to the rathere feith wee han amendyd. The boc forsothe of Baruch, his notorie, that anent the Ebrues is not rad, ne had, wee han laft; for alle these thingus curses of enemys abidende, to whom nede is me to ansvern bi my werkis a rowe. And this I suffere, for 3ee constreynen, O! Paule and Eustoche; but more rizt it were, to the shorting of euel, to putte mesure to the wodnesse of them bi my silence, than to eche dai sum what of newe thing writende, to^k terre^l the wodnesse of the enuyouse.

if he shul condempne, that he seith biforn, that thei be delyuered by penaunce, that weren dampned bi gilte. Nynyuytes weren dampned synneres of^o God; 3it forsothe thre dazes, and Nynyue was to be turned vp so doun; God wolde not with silence punshe condempned men, but, 3yuende to them place of penaunce, sente an Ebru profete, that shulde seyn, 3it thre dazes, and Nynyue shal be turned vp so doun; lest persheden, that is, that weren dampned, but doende penaunce, thei shulden purchacen mercy. Sodomytes also^p and Gomorreis now to hard torment weren ordeyned, as the sermoun of God to^a Abraham shewide; nerthelater^e that theiris^r was, the aungelis diden, wynende hem to sauen, that sheweden himself vnwrthi helthe; and seiende to Loth, Is ther any man to thee heer sone in lawe, or sones, outh^s doztris? ne thei vnknewen hem not 'to bent to folewen Loth, but thei sheweden hern^u to gidere and his benygnete and loue that hem hadde sent. Lijc sum what in Jeremye wee finden. Notid is forsothe the tyme of his profecye, whan he gan^v, or hadde endid to^w profecyen. Seith therfore sum man, What to me the tyme of the storie? for he began to profecien in the dazes of Josie, sone^x of Amos, the^y king of Juda, vnto the threttenthe^x 3er in his regne^a. Ther after he profeciede in the dazes of Joachym, sone of Josie, the^b king of Juda; and bi thre kingus his profecie is strajt out, vnto the caitifte of Jerusalem. In the fifte monyth condempnede God Jerusalem for his synnes, and that was the laste sentence, that caitif thei shulden be forsake; but sithen God is the^c makere of men, ne any man wile to pershen, bifor that^d the tyme of destruccioun shulde stonden in, he sente and this profete, that shulde bidde to penaunce. He sente the same also vnder the secounde king^e after the puple; he sente also vnder the thridde. Now the caitifte stod on, and 3it to helthe God stired, 3yuende^f and biforn o dai place of penaunce; wherfore it is write, vnto the caitifte of Jerusalem, and vnto the fifte moneth, to han profecied to Jerusalem. Now the^g bondis^h of the enemys hadden streyned the hondis, and nerthelater this God seide, Lo! caitif 3ee ben mad, doth penaunce; tho3 late, pre3eth me, and I shal spare to 3ou; I mai delyuere fro the caitifte, that I haue take 3ou, vn to the ful ending of the elleuente 3er of Sedechie, sone of Osie, king of Juda. This also of vs wee moun vnderstonde, a synnere forsotheⁱ to be taken to Sathan; no thing is ferr fro it, that Jewis ben taken to Nabugodonosor, that as^k hem God grauntide to the^l aduersarie for ofte vsid vnpitousnesse, so wee ben taken for oure synnes to spirituel Nabugodonosor, that whom he hath take to Sathan, thei lerne to not blasfemen. Weenest thou hou myche euel it is to synnen, that he take to Sathan, caityuende the soules of them that ben forsaken of God? not withoute cause, that is, ne with oute dom. Whan forsothe he shal sende reyn vp on the vyne, and that reyn shal bringe forth thornes, what shal he do, but that he comaunde to the^m wederes, that thei reyne not vp on theⁿ vyne weder? Ny3 therfore^o is and oure caitifte, if wee do not penaunce, that wee be take to Nabugodonosor, king of Babiloyne, whiche now liende^p ny3, the wrdis of profetis^q, of the lawe, of the apostolis, and of the selue Crist^r 'ful out biden vs^s to penaunce, stern to helthe. If wee heren, wee leuen to hym that seide, I shal do penaunce of alle the^t euelis, that I spac to do to them.

in the dazes of Ezechie, king of Jude; and he seith to al the puple of Jude, sei-

And so do we not gret euel azen oure in the name of the Lord, Vrias, the sone of Semmei, of Cariathiarim; and he pro-feciede azen this cite, and azen this lond, Achabor, and men with him, in to Egipt; brozten hym to king Joachym; and he^x sone of Safan, was with Jeremye, that he schulde not be take in to the hondus Doom of deth is not to this man; for he spak to vs in the name of oure Lord God.

Therfor men of the eldere men of the lond 17 rysiden^l vp, and seiden to al the cumpanye rasten was a profete in the daies of Eze-chie, king of Juda; and he seide to al the oostis seith these thingis, Sion schal be erid as a feeld, and Jerusalem schal be in of woodis. Whether Ezechie, kyng of Juda, 19 and al Juda condempnede hym bi deth?

Whether thei dredden not the Lord, and bisouzten the face of the Lord? and it repentide the Lord of the yuel which he spak azens hem. Therfor do we not greet yuel azens oure soulis. Also Vrye, the 20 sone of Semey, of Cariathiarim, was a man profesyng in the name of the Lord; and he profesiede azens this citee, and azens this lond, bi alle the wordis of Jeremye. And kyng Joachym, and alle the 21 myzti men, and princes of hem, herden these wordis; and the kyng souzte to sle hym; and Vrye herde, and dredde, and he fledde, and entride in to Egipt. And 22 kyng Joachym sente men in to Egipt, Elnathan, the sone of Achabor, and men Vrye out of Egipt, and brouzten hym to kyng Joachym; and the kyng killide hym Therfor the hond of Aicham, sone of Sa- 24 that it killide not hym.

 36 of the Lord. Thes thingis seith the Lord euy^l fame is shewid in thi fornyaciouns vpon^q thi louteris and vpon^q thin idolis of

 In what thing schal Y clense thin herte, 30 the contrarie was don in thee. Therfor, 35 but that the wickid man be conuertid fro his weie, and lyue; he 3e conuertid fro man schal not anoye him, in what euere dai he is conuertid fro his wickidnesse; and a iust man schal not mowe lyue in his that he schal lyue bi lijf, and he tristith in his riztfulnesse, and doith wickidnesse, alle his riztfulnessis schulen be 3ouun to

And the word of the Lord was maad 1 thou; and thou schalt seie to the schepherdis, The Lord God seith these thingis, Wo to the schepherdis of Israel, that fed-of schepherdis? 3e eeten mylk, and weren 3 that ther was no sheperd, forsothe nether 10 the word of the Lord, These thingis saith the Lord God, Loo! I my self vpon the the hond of hem, and I shal make hem for to ceese, that thei na more feede my heeȝ mounteyns of Yrael the lesewis of hem shuln be; there thei shuln aȝein reste in erbis wexyngre greene, and in fat lesewis thei shuln be fed vpon the moun-15 teyns of Yrael. Y shal feede my sheep, and I shal make hem for to reste, saith 16 the Lord God. Y^r shal aȝein seeke that that perishide, and I shal aȝein leede that that was cast away; and I shal bynd to that that was to gidre broken, and I shal coumforte that that was seek; and I shal keepe that that is fat and strong, and I 17 shal feede hem in dome; forsothe ȝe ben my flockis. These thingus saith the Lord God, Loo! I deeme bitwixe beest and beest, and wether and buc of geet.

18 Wher it was not ynewȝ to ȝou for to deof alle beestis of the feeld, for that that no scheepherde was, for the scheepherdis souȝten not my floc, but the scheepherdis fedden hem silf, and fedden not my flockis; therfor, scheepherdis, here ȝe the word of⁹ the Lord, The Lord God seith these thingis, 10 Lo! Y my silf^s am ouer scheepherdis; Y shal seke my floc of the hond of hem, and Y shal make hem to ceesse, that thei fede no more my floc, and that the^t scheepherdis feede no more hem silf. And Y shal delyuere my floc fro the mouth of hem, and it shal no more be in to mete to hem.

For the Lord God seith these thingis, Lo! 11 Y my silf shal seke my scheep, and Y shal visite hem. As a scheepherde visitith 12 his floc, in the dai whanne he is in the myddis of hise scheep that ben^u scaterid, so Y shal visite my scheep; and Y shal delyuere hem fro alle places in whiche thei weren scaterid, in the dai of cloude, and of derknesse. And Y shal leede hem 13 out of puplis, and Y shal gadere hem fro londis, and Y shal bryngre hem in to her lond, and Y shal feede hem in the hillis of Israel, in ryueris, and in alle seetis of erthe. Y shal feede hem in moost plen- 14 teouse pasturis, and the lesewis of hem schulen be in the hiȝ^v hillis of Israel; there thei schulen reste in greene eerbis, and in fatte lesewis thei schulen be fed on the hillis of Israel. Y shal fede my scheep, 15

Lord God. I shal seke that that pe- 16

 28 hond of men comaundyng to hem. And thei shuln na more be in to raueyn in heithen men, nether beestis of the feeld shuln deuoure hem, bot thei shuln dwelle shalt prophecie to it, and shalt saye to 3 it, These thingis saith the Lord God, Loo! I to thee, mount of Seir; I shal strecche out myn hond vpon thee, and 4 I schal 3iue thee desolat and desert. I schal distrye thi citees, and thou schalt

5 Lord. For that that thou was an enemy euer lastynge, and closidist to gydre the sones of Yrael in to hondis^a of swerd, in the tyme of her affliccioun, in the tyme 6 of the last wickidnesse; therfore Y lyue, saith the Lord God, for I shal bitake

CAP. XXXVI.

1 Forsothe thou, sone of man, prophecie vpon the mounteyns of Yrael; and thou shalt saye, Hillis of Yrael, heere 3e the Therfor whanne the daies weren fillid, 18 aftir whiche the kyng seide, that thei schulden be brou3t yn, the souereyn of onest seruauntis and chast brou3te in hem, in the sijt of Nabugodonosor. And whanne 19 the kyng hadde spoke to hem, siche weren not foundun of alle, as Daniel, Ananye, wisdom and of vndurstondyng, which the king axide of hem, he foond in hem^q ten

¹ I, Nabugodonosor, was quyete in myn ²hous, and flouringeⁿⁿ in my paleys; I saw³ a sweuen, whiche feride me; and my thouȝtis in my bed, and siztis of myn hed, ³to gidre troubliden me. And by me a decree was putte forth, that alle wijse men of Babiloyne shulden be ledde yn in my sizt, that thei shulden shewe to me the solucioun, or vndirstondyng, of the ⁴sweuene. Thanne entriden dyuynours by auters, wicches^o, Caldeis, and dyuynours by sterris; and I teelde the swenen in the sizt of hem, and thei shewiden not to me ⁵the solucioun therof, til a felowe of office entride in my sizt, Danyel, to whom the name Balthasar, after the name of my god, whiche hath the spirit of holy goddis in hym self; and I spac the sweuen b-⁶fore hym. Balthasar, prince of dyuynours by autris, whom I wote, for thou hast in thee the spirit of holy goddis, and eche sacrament is not impossible to thee, telle thou to me the visions^p of my ⁷sweuens, and the solucioun of hem. Thus I saw³ in sizt of myn heued, vpon my bed. And loo! the waker, and holy came down from ¹¹heuen, and criede strongli, and thus saith, Kitte ȝe down the tree, and bfore kitte

I, Nabugodonosor, was restful in myn¹ hous, and flouryng in my paleis; Y siz² a dreem, that made me aferd; and my thouȝtis in my bed, and the siztis of myn heed disturbliden me. And a decre was³ set forth bi me, that alle the wise men of Babiloyne schulden be brouȝt in bfor my sizt, and that thei schulden schewe to me the soilyng of the dreem. Than false dy-⁴uynours, astronomyens^r, Caldeis, and biholderis of auteris entriden; and Y telde the dreem in the sizt of hem, and thei schewiden not to me the soilyng therof, til the felowe in office, Danyel, to whom⁵ the name was Balthasar, bi the name of my God, entride in my sizt, which^s Danyel hath the spirit of hooli goddis in hym silf; and Y spac the dreem bfor hym. Baltha-⁶sar, prince of dyuynouris, whom Y knowe, that thou hast in thee the spirit of hooli goddis, and ech sacrament, ether preuytee, is not vnpossible to thee, telle thou to me the visiouns of my dreemes, whiche Y siz⁷, and the soilyng of tho. This is the visioun⁷ of myn heed in my bed. Forsothe that the kyng saw³ the waker and hooly for to cum down fro heuen, and for to saye, Kitte ^{3e} down the tree, and scatre ^{3e} it, nethese leue the buriownyng of rootys therof in erthe, and be he bounden in yren and brasse, and in erbis with out forth, and dew of heuen be it spreyn to gydre, and with wylde beestis be his mete, til seuen tymes be chaungid vpon 21 hym; this is the interpretacioun of sentence of the heeizist, that came fully vpon 22 my lord kyng. Thei shuln cast thee out fro men, and with beestus and wijlde beestis thi dwellyng schal be, and thou shalt ete hay as an oxe, bot and in dewe of heuen thou shalt be inshed, and seuene tymes shuln be chaungid vpon thee, til thou wite, that the hey³ lord-

 23 Forsothe that he comaundide, that buriownyng of rootis therof, that is to saye, of the tree, schulde be left, thi rewme schal dwelle to thee, after that thou shalt

 25 ^{3e}ue thi trespasses. Alle these thingus 26 camen on Nabugodonosor, kyng. After the eende of twelue monethis in the halle 27 of Babiloyne he walkide; and the kyng answerde and saith, Wher this not Babyloyne, the grete citee, whiche I beeldide in to the hous of rewme, in^u mi³t of my strengthe, and in glorie of my fairnesse?
 28 Therefore whann ^{3it} the word was in the kyngus mouthe, a voice felle fro heuen, To thee it is said, kyng Nabugodonosor, 29 Thi rewme passith fro thee, and fro men thei shuln caste out thee, and with beestis and wijlde beestis thi dwellyng schal be; thou shalt ete hay as an oxe, and seuen tymes shuln be chaungid vpon thee, til Thei²² schulen caste thee out fro men, and thi dwellyng schal be with beestys and wielde beestis, and thou schalt ete hey, as an oxe doith, but also thou schalt be bisched with the dew of heuene, also seuen tymes schulen be chaungid on thee, til thou knowe, that hi³ God is Lord 'on the^f rewme⁸ of men, and ^{3y}ueth it to whom euer he wole. Forsothe that he comaundide, that the²³ seed of rootis therof, that is, of the tree, schulde be left, thi rewme schal dwelle to thee, aftir that thou knowist that the power is of heuene. Wherfor, kyng, my²⁴ counsel plese thee, and ^{3e}nbie thi synnes with almesdedis, and *3e*nbie thi wickidnessis with mercies of pore men; in hap God schal for^{3y}ue thi trespassis. Alle²⁵ these thingis camen on Nabugodonosor, the^h kyng. After the ende of twelue²⁶ monethis he walkide in the halle of Babiloyne; and the kyng answeride, and ²⁷ seide, Whether this is not Babiloyne, the greet citee, which Y bildide in to the hous of rewme, in the mi³t of my strengthe, and in the glorie of my fairnesse? Whanne²⁸ the word was ^{3it} in the mouth of the kyng, a vois felle down fro heuene, Nabugodonosor, kyng, it is seid to thee, Thi rewme is passid fro thee, and thei schulen²⁹ caste thee out fro men, and thi dwellyng schal be with beestis and wielde beestis; thou schalt ete hey, as an oxe doith, and seuen tymes schulen be chaungid on thee, til thou knowe, that hi³ God is Lord in the rewme of men, and ^{3y}ueth it to whom euere he wole. men seiden, We schulen not fynde eny princes and duykis^d maden fals suggesmagistratis, and duykis, senatours, and for, kyng, conferme thou the sentence, and write thou the decree, that this^f that is ordeyned of Medeis and Perseis be not chaungid, nethir be it leueful to ony man whanne Danyel hadde founde this thing, that is, the lawe ordeyned, he entride in to his hous; and the while the wyndows weren open in his soler azens Jerusalem, in thre tymes in the dai he bowide hise

To whom the kyng answeyng saith, The word is trewe, vp the decree of sorewful ynew³, and for Danyel sette the vnto goyng doun of the sunne he tra-tho men vndirstondyng the kyng, saiden to hym, Wite thou, kyng, for the lawe whiche the kyng ordeyneth, be not leeful comaundide, and thei ledden to Danyel, and senten hym into the lake of lyouns.

And the kyng sayde to Danyel, Thi God, whom thou wirshipidist euermore, he shal 17 delyuere thee. And a stoon is brougt to, and is putt on the mouthe of the lake, whiche the kyng markide, or sealide, on 19 Thanne the kyng first in the mornyng rysyng hastily, wente to the lake of founden Danyel preiynge, and bisechyng

To whiche^g men the kyng answeride, and seide, The word is soth, bi the decree of Medeis and^h Perseis, which it is not leueful to breke. Thanne thei answeriden, 13 and seiden bfore the kyng, Danyel, of the sones of caitifte of Juda, reckide not of

And the kyng seide to Danyel, Thi God,

Forsothe hooli men schulen take the 18

26 And the visioun, that is said in euening and morewnyng, is trewe. Therefore seale thou, or marke, the visyoun, for made gobettis, and 3aue in to mouthe of the dragoun, and the dragoun is borstun.

 And Danyel sayde, Loo! whom 3e wir-

 And Daniel seide, Lo! the pawment, per-seyue thou whos steppis these ben. And 19 and bitook Bel in to the power of Daniel, which^j distriede thilke Bel, and his tem-place, and Babiloyns worschipiden it. And 23 the kyng seide to Daniel, Lo! now thou therfor worschipe thou hym. And Da- 24 mouth of the dragun; and the dragun was al to-brokun. And Daniel seide, Lo!

 And Y a3enbouzte hem, and thei spaken

 13 whiche ben acomptid as alyen. Thei shulen brenge to oostis, and shuln offre fleshis, and shuln ete; and the Lord shal not resceyue hem. Now he shal recorde the wickidnesse of hem, and shal visite the synnes of hem; thei shuln be turnyd maker, and beeldide templis, and Judas multipliede stronge citees; and Y shal sende fjr in to the citees of him^r, and it shal deuoure the housis of hym.

CAP. IX.

1 Yrael, nyl thou glade, nyl thou ioie fornicacioun fro thi God. Thou louedist 2 kijris on alle feeldis of whete. Feeld and pressour shal not feede hem, and 3 wijne shal lye to hem. Thei shuln not turnyde a3ein in to Egypt, and in Assi-4 riens cete defoulid thing. Thei shuln not sacrifice wijn to the Lord, and thei hem as breede of mournynge men; alle breed of hem, of the soule of hem, shal not entre in to the^s hous of the Lord.

 5 What shuln 3e do in the solempne day, sothely thei ben gon fro wastnesse.

 Egypt shal gedere hem, Memphis shal birie hem. A nettil shal enherit the desirable syluer of hem, a cloote in the 7 tabernaclis of hem. Days of visityng wite thou thee a fool, a wood prophete, a spirituel man, for the multitude of thi wickidnesse, and multitude of madnesse.

 prophete is maad a gnare of fallynge, on alle the wayes of hym, wodenesse in the togidere, and thei schulen reste^a a litil fro birthun of the kyng and of princes. For 11 Effraym multipliede auteris to do synne, auteris weren maad to hym in to trespas.

 Y schal write to hem my many fold lawis, 12 that ben arettid as alien lawis. Thei schu- 13 seyue tho. Now he schal haue mynde on the wickidnessis of hem, and he schal visite the synnes of hem; thei schulen turne and bildide templis to idols^o, and Judas multipliede stronge citees; and Y schal sende fier in to the citees^p of hym, and it schal deuoure the housis of hym.

CAP. IX.

Israel, nyle thou be glad, nyle thou 1 make ful out ioie as puplis; for thou hast do fornicacioun fro thi God. Thou louedist meede on alle the cornflooris of wheete. The cornfloor and pressour schal 2 not feede hem, and wyn schal lie to hem.
 Thei schulen not dwelle in the lond of the 3 Lord. Effraym turnede a3en in to Egypt, Thei schulen not offre wyn to the Lord, 4 and thei schulen not plesse hym. The sacrifices of hem ben as breed of mourneris; alle that schulen ete it schulen be de-foulid. For the breed of hem is to the lijf of hem; thei schulen not entre in to

In the hee3t therof Y see3 the faders of

CAP. XI.

As the morewtid passith, the king of 1 so thei 3eden awei fro the face of hem.

Thei offriden to Baalym, and maden sacri-boondis of charite. And Y schal be to hem as he that enhaunsith the 3ok on the chekis puple schal hange, at my comynge a3en.

But a 3ok schal be put to hem togidere, that schal not be takun awei. Hou schal 8 Y 3yue thee, Effraym? schal Y defende thee, Israel? hou schal Y 3yue thee? As Adama Y schal sette thee; as Seboym.
Myn herte is turned in me; my repentaunce is disturblid togidere. Y schal not 9 do the strong veniaunce of my wraththe.
Y schal not turne, to leese Effraym; for Y am God, and not man. Y am hooli in the myddis of thee, and Y schal not entre in to a citee. Thei schulen go after the 10 Lord. He shal rore as a lioun, for he shal

CAP. V.

1 Heere 3e, hous of Yrael, this word, 2 that Y reyse on 3ou a weylyng. The meyden of Yrael felle down, she shal not down in to hir erthe, ther is not that shal

 Lord God, The cite of whiche a thou-

 4 the hous of Yrael. For these thingis seith the Lord to the hous of Israel, Seeke 3e seeke Bethel, and in to Galgala nyle 3e entre, and into Bersabe passe 3e not; for Galgal schal be led caityf, and Bethel shal

 Joseph be brent as fijre; and it shal deu-oure, and ther shal not be, that shal triede Sodom and Gomorre, and 3e ben maad as a brond rauyschid of brennyng; and 3e turneden not azen to me, seith the Lord. Wherfor, thou Israel, Y schal do 12 these thingis to thee; but afir that Y schal do to thee these thingis, Israel, be maad redi in to azen comyng of thi God. For 13 lo! he fourmeth hillis, and makith wynd, and tellith to man his speche; and he makith a 'morew myist^b, and goith on hiz
